1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a heat storage medium useful for cooling devices which require heat storability and, more particularly, to a heat storage medium which can be used for a liquid-cooled room air conditioner for cooling rooms, a heat storage condensing device for cooling cooling water in cooling towers, and a heat storage refrigerator for cooling foods.

2. Description of the Related Art Cooling devices, particularly room air conditioners for cooling rooms, have been employing room cooling media wherein a heat storage medium comprising a heat storage material is charged in a cooling agent tank, and the heat storage medium is circulated by an absorption or desorption refrigeration cycle. As the heat storage material used for the room cooling media, a salt hydrate which has a melting point of about 70.degree. C., a high coefficient of heat absorption (heat capacity) of about 1 kcal/kg of water and melting resistance (P.sub.30) is usually selected. The problems involved in the heat storage media of the above-mentioned type are that the heat storage capacity is limited, that high-purity water is required for regeneration, and that an adsorbent which does not deteriorate when subjected to the repeated operations of absorption and desorption must be selected. It has been known that the heat storage material can be replaced by a solid-liquid crystalline compound as the heat storage material. The heat storage material, however, is required to have a melting point of around 100.degree. C., and further has a large heat capacity, so that it is not suitable for cooling room air conditioners for cooling rooms., précisément, le référendum québécois, et d'autres qui ne sont pas ressortissants canadien-français, s'ils y sont inscrits, pourront voter « oui » ou « non ». Et, en cas de résultat « oui », la loi du suffrage de masse se substituera à la loi fédérale d'obligation du carcan à l'étranger qui n'a jamais été appliquée. Il s
